2011 ASHA Awards
It's time to nominate outstanding colleagues for ASHA awards. The deadline is March 15. See p. 26.

Meet 2011 ASHA President, Paul R. Rao

Twenty of the 24 staff speech-language pathologists at the National Rehabilitation Hospital (NRH) joined their administrator, ASHA President Paul Rao, for a photo last fall at the Washington, D.C., facility. The SLPs at NRH treat a range of adult neurogenic conditions in the hospital's inpatient units and outpatient clinics. Shown are (front row, from left): Amy Georgeadis, Mackenzie Farna, Sara Vandenberg, Rao, Patty Fletcher, Denise Frankoff, and Iana Friedman; (middle row, from left) Rochini Rao, Brownrigg Snow, Kristi Ney, Mary Kay Sambuchino, Lauren Robinson, Brooke Hatfield, Shannon Clarkin, and Kristin Lilly; and (back row, from left) Lauren Taylor, Kelly Owen, Chris Baron, Jan Coles, and Emily Gibson. An interview with Rao begins on p. 20.

New Congress Poses Challenges
Divided 112th Congress Presents Obstacles to 2011 Public Policy Efforts

by George Lyons Jr.

It is fitting that ASHA's Board of Directors approved the association's 2011 public policy agenda (PPA) on Veterans Day—because the new divided Congress is set to do battle as it returns from its winter recess. The 2010 elections brought far-reaching change, with Republicans poised to control the House of Representatives and Democrats holding a slim majority in the Senate. This divided 112th Congress will present many challenges as ASHA seeks to implement the PPA mandates, which address the public policy concerns of audiologists, speech-language pathologists, and speech, language, and hearing scientists.

Among the highest priorities are coverage and reimbursement issues, comprehensive audiology benefit, recruitment and retention, and education law reform.

The Government Relations and Public Policy Board (GRPPB) developed the 2011 agenda in consultation with committees, staff, and members (2,700 of whom responded to the survey seeking input). The PPA ranks issues into four categories—highest priority, priority, monitoring, and planning—based upon their significance, available resources, and likelihood of advocacy success. The issues in each category are further divided based upon their funding, personnel, or policy characteristics (www.asha.org/Advocacy/briefs-agenda/2011-ASHA-Public-Policy-Agenda).

Highest Priorities
Among the highest priorities requiring immediate intervention are coverage and reimbursement issues, comprehensive audiology
